

National Roundup

November 22, 2006

by Andrew Davis

The National Center for Transgender Equality (NCTE) has released a resource designed to help communities respond effectively regarding hate crimes against transgender people. "Responding to Hate Crimes: A Community Resource Manual"

(www.nctequality.org/resources/hatecrimes.pdf) will be widely distributed to advocates around the country. The Day of Remembrance is annually observed on or around Nov. 20....

A partnership of Ipas, the National Gay and Lesbian Task Force and the SisterSong Women of Color Reproductive Health Collective has released a newly-updated Mapping Our Rights, an easy-to-use innovative interactive map—with state-by-state rankings—that includes information on the 32 new bills restricting sexual and reproductive rights passed in state houses around the country in the last six months. The map is available at MappingOurRights.org.